ECONOLINE MODELS/TOYS

Unbeknown to me until SEQ-54 was mailed, the print shop had changed the aspect ratio of last issue's page 5403 containing photos of the Jada Toys DUB City Oldskool die cast 1965 Econoline Window Van, Pickup, & regular Van models. This caused the models to appear longer and lower ("super slammed") than they really are.

Most of the die cast specialty vendors I've contacted expect to be able to ship pre-paid retail orders before Xmas (of course that's what they are telling all the customers!..

. Have checked the prices of several vendors for the 1:24 scale Econoline models and distributor wholesale presently runs around $10 to $12 each, and retail is about $11.88 to $16.50, each..

THE "APARTMENT"

For the 1966 model year Detroit Auto Show, Ford Motor Co stylists turned a mundane 66 Ford Falcon Custom Club Wagon window van into an autoshow delight called the "Apartment" and which was painted a brilliant Metallic Copper. By simply sectioning seven inches out of the body below the beltline and just above the wheel wells, they created more a stable and sturdy appearance. Because the glass areas are undiminished, good visibility is maintained while a feeling of top heaviness is avoided. Simple exterior trim pieces are complemented by a custom thin tube grillwork in front and a quartet of exhaust pipes. Power was provided by a high performance 289 V-8 and a regular version Falcon/Econoline 3 speed "C4" automatic transmission. The interior roof structural cross beam supports are covered in dark tinted wood mouldings that cross the golden brown palomino vinyl headliner. The two passenger side cargo doors were replaced by a single door, and the small triangular widows normally located behind the front doors were removed. Sorry that the displayed illustrations are from 66 car magazines because I couldn't find the slides I took, of other interesting features, like the tailgate, when this show car appeared at the 66 Los Angeles Auto Show. A one piece back window replaced the two optional windows normally located in the back cargo doors. One of the pitfalls resulting from sectioning an Econoline is that there's 7" less headroom and all of the models pictured are under five foot tall, and required a step stool to enter since the four exhaust pipes prevented a retracting side step mechanism.
