ECONOLINE MODELS/TOYS

West meet along with a flier for the 2007 June 1-3 EconO Carlisle meet.

Due to house constructed on the lot adjacent to Don Renner the annual Burlington WI Midwest EconO Fest meet will once again be held by Rick Kenney in Excelsior Springs MO (which is about 25 miles northeast of Kansas City MO) on Saturday 11 August. Currently, the exact location hasn't been determined but will be announced in SEQ-57 (the June issue). Contact SEQ reader Rick Kelley for further information.

The EconO Mid South meet will be held on the second of September at Petit Jean State Park off I-40 northwest of Little Rock AR near Morrilton. Some First Econoline owners are often camped in the park over the entire labor day weekend.

Terry Abbot will host the 2007 EconO Northwest meet from 10 to 4 on Sunday September 9th at the Les Scwhab Tire Center, 2410 Southeast 122nd Avenue in Portland OR..

SEQ reader John Horn will host the EconO Southeast meet, hopefully sometime in October, at the restored train station in Plant City FL.

ECONOLINE MODELS/TOYS

Fairfield Mint (fairfieldmint.com or 1-800-964-8908) advertises Jada Toy's DUB City Old Skool 1:24 scale model 1965 Ford Custom Econoline Pickup at $29.99 + S&H Wal Mart, and most other high volume retailers (like Target, etc), sell the same 1/24 scale Jada Toy 1965 Ford Custom Econoline Pickup for about $10, and they sell the 1:64 scale models for about $3. .

Just like the excellent 2006 issued Jesse James West Coast Chopper Version of a First Econoline (with roof mounted spotlight) 1:64 scale models are about 2 1/2 inches long. The 1:24 scale models pictured on pages 5604/5 are about 8 inches long.

As shown on page 5603, the recently introduced Jada Toys line of 1:64, and 1:24, scale "DUB City Old Skool" 1965 Ford Econoline models, are far and away the least expensive and most realistic first generation Econoline model toys ever produced.

These models are made in China, and all of the current versions are "slammed" (i.e., have a very much lower than stock stance). Presently, the 1:24 scale regular van versions have not yet been distributed to vendors, but the Pick-ups and Window Vans have been shipped to vendors and customers. The 1:64 scale toys are regular vans and window vans and are presently only produced with ProStar custom wheels

The 1:64 scale versions are mainly available on ebay and at high volume retail chains like Wal Mart, etc. Besides ebay and retailers like Wal Mart, the 1:24 scale versions are also available from diecast toy specialists..

Outside rectangular door mounted "5 x 7" rear view mirrors are only installed on the drivers side..

These models presently are configured with either "Baby Moon" hubcaps, or with "ProStar" Custom Wheels. Those models with the ProStar Custom Wheels also have disc brakes, and Jada Toys also makes a complete line of custom wheels that can be exchanged for their production wheels.

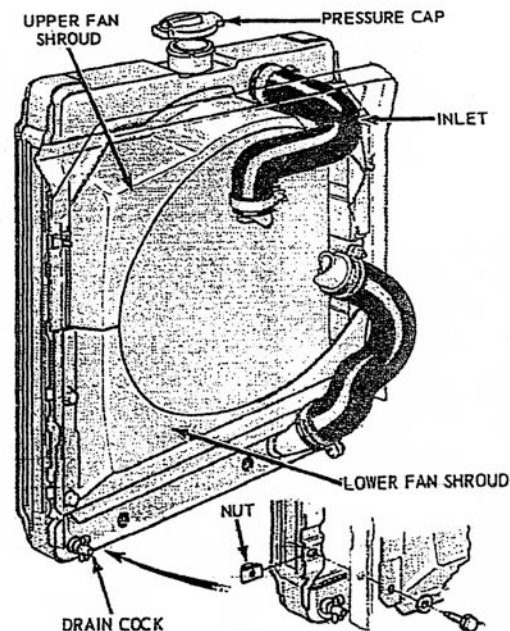

Some owners have reported that they have temporarily removed the undercarriage from the upper body assembly, and removed the axles and redrilled the axle positions so that the models assume the normal stock height. However I've yet to receive photos of these modified "unslammed" versions.

All of the windshields and windows, except those in doors that actually open (i.e., the front doors and the passenger side doors on the vans), have plastic "glass" installed.

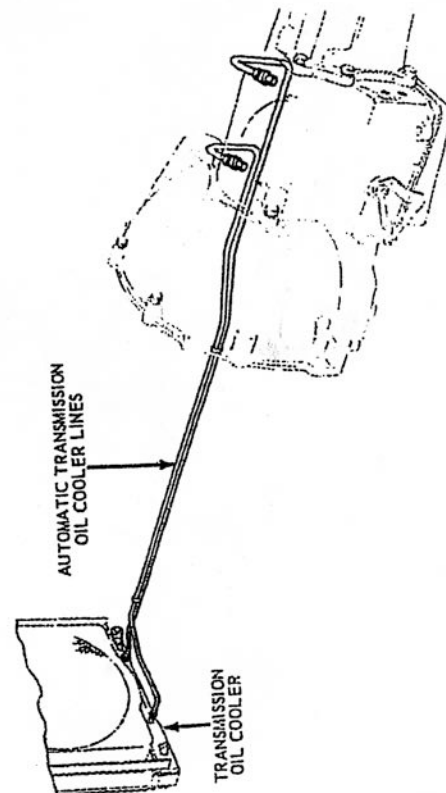

The two tone versions of the DUB City Window Vans/Buses differ from the original first generation Econolines, which only used white as the upper portion color which was applied from the beltline to the drip rails.

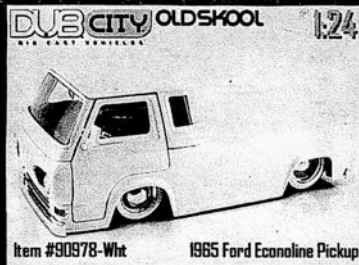

SEQ-57 (June) will have more (& hopefully better) photos of the Old Skool window van "buses" and regular vans.
